Vikings strike again!

The Vikings came on long boat

Written by Archie Joyner

Yesterday, 6th June 793AD, eight hundred bloodthirsty, violent Vikings landed their longboats at the shoreline of Lindisfarne from Denmark. After an hour, Holy Island was not Holy anymore.

During the attack, elderly, selfless monks were brutally decapitated and the young, defenceless monks were captured to be slaves. They stole money, Bibles and gold crosses and tried to sell them back to them! When they had stolen everything they burnt St Cuthbert's monastery down. Mr John Fishlegs (a surviving monk) said, "I watched the monastery be burnt down to ashes and I am devastated!"

The Vikings found it easy to attack because the high tide meant the monks could go nowhere and the monks would be unable to defend themselves.

The Vikings had no respect for the monastery because they were pagans. They believed in Odin (the God of War) who wanted them to take over the world.

Lindisfarne was once home to a sacred, serene monastery, now it is home to a sea of corpses.

We are all in danger, the Vikings are coming so hide!!!!
